

Sexual Health Snapshot

BALTIMORE CITY TEENS

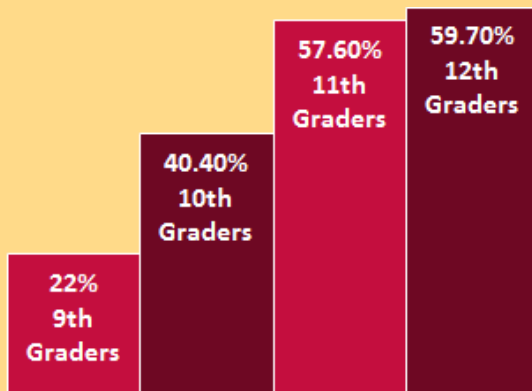

50% of all new sexually transmitted infections (STIs) in the U.S. each year are in teens and young adults¹

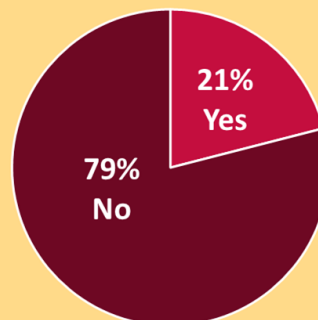

2,499 cases of chlamydia
715 cases of gonorrhea
in Baltimore City teens²

Most STIs have no symptoms and without treatment can cause serious health problems

Baltimore City high school students who reported ever having sex³

Having an STI increases the risk of getting HIV

Baltimore City high school students who reported drinking alcohol or using drugs the last time they had sex³

Alcohol and drug use may impair decision-making about having sex, condom use and consent

52% of Baltimore City high school students reported using a condom the last time they had sex³

531 births to Baltimore City teens⁴

Talk to your doctor or county health department about STI testing and treatment

Teens: ages 15-19; Young Adults: ages 20-24

Data sources:

1. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), 2018
2. Maryland Department of Health, Center for STI Prevention, 2018
3. Maryland Department of Health, Youth Risk Behavior Survey, 2018
4. Maryland Department of Health, Vital Statistics Administration, 2018

To learn more, visit: <http://bit.ly/STIPrevention>

March 2020

